Wednesday, April 6

ELSEA CASE PENDING

Trucking Company Fights
$5,666 Verdict

Four cases are on file to be presented to the district Court of Appeals when it convenes in Circleville on April 6 at 9 a. m. Three involve traffic accidents.

One case for consideration is that of Mrs. Ruth Elsea, administratrix of the estate of her husband, Asa, against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus. Mrs. Elsea asked $22,786 damages or the death of her husband in March, 1936, in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, north of Circleville. A Common Pleas court jury awarded Mrs. Elsea $5,666.66. John McCrady and Bernard Dowden were killed in the same accident. The case was appealed by the transportation company on questions of law.

Roof Action Scheduled
Another action to be presented to the court is the suit of George H. Roof, S. Pickaway street, against Wilson Hundley, York street. Mr. Roof asked $15,500 for injuries received on Jan. 6, 1936, when he was struck by Hundley's auto near Court and Main streets. A verdict was returned by a jury in favor of Hundley. Mr. Roof appealed on questions of law and error.

The third case involving a traffic accident is that of Homer Kidwell, Darby township, against H. C. McPherson, of Pherson. The suit is based on a truck wreck, Dec. 12, 1936 near the intersection of Route 56 and the Williamsport-Darbyville pike. Mr. Kidwell was awarded $679.16 in his suit for $984. The appeal on questions of law was filed by Mr. McPherson. The fourth case for submission is that of Myrtle Reichelderfer and Arnold Reichelderfer, Tarleton, against Thomas B. Wolf, and others. It will be taken before the court on an injunction. The case involves an action on a note.

Habeas corpus proceedings were brought by the baby's father to obtain custody of the child. Separated from his wife, the father, Ross Wadsworth Ghent, said he found the baby living with Mr. and Mrs. James Wheeler. The court ordered the child into custody of a grandmother pending further investigation.

NORRIS' IDEA OPPOSED

Jurisdiction Over Inquiry Causing Struggle

WASHINGTON, March 24—(UP)—Early congressional action on proposals for an investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority was expected today as opponents of the New Deal's power and regional planning project sought to impound its funds.

The dispute between senators and representatives as to who should have jurisdiction over an inquiry of the T. V. A. and of President Roosevelt's removal of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan as chairman continued. But Sen. H. Styles Bridges, R. N. H., tried to hasten a vote on pending resolutions by threatening to tie up, if possible, the agency's funds.

He said that he believed two possible methods of procedure existed—through the courts or by senate resolution. "I plan to confer with legal authorities today on the proper manner to proceed in court," he said. "If they advise against court action because of technical difficulties, I shall introduce a resolution in the senate at once and demand its consideration."

"Continued delay by congress in acting in this matter conceivably can jeopardize the whole investigation."

"Whitewashing" Feared

Bridges, who is co-author with Sen. William King, D. Utah, of a resolution for a senate investigation of the T. V. A. said that he feared that with Dr. Morgan's successor, Harcourt T. Morgan, and Director David E. Lilienthal, in possession of T. V. A. records, "many of the things of which Dr. Morgan complained may be covered up or whitewashed."

An attempt to get immediate consideration of the Bridges-King resolution was blocked yesterday after President Roosevelt in a special message on Dr. Morgan's removal had virtually invited congress to investigate.

Immediate action on some resolution was probable, however. Late yesterday the senate audit and (Continued on Page Two)

NEW OHIO AUTO CERTIFICATION ACT HELD LEGAL

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP)—Constitutionality of the automobile registration law which became effective Jan. 1 was upheld tentatively by the Ohio supreme court yesterday.

The high court dismissed a mandamus action brought by the City Loan and Savings Company of Wapakoneta against Seneca County Recorder Harry Taggart to force him to record three chattel mortgages covering motor vehicles. Counsel for the savings firm contended the registration law, designed to check automobile thefts, was unconstitutional. The court, however, upheld the statute insofar as the judges said Taggart did not have to record the automobile mortgages.

The new law exempted chattels on autos from the mortgage recording required on other property, instead requiring a registration with the clerk of court.

He promised that Mexico would "honor its obligations abroad" and would move "to begin immediately indemnification" to 17 American and other foreign oil companies whose $400,000,000 properties were expropriated by the government.

At the same time, however, Cardenas (Continued on Page Two)

Reorganization Action Nears Senate Verdict

Byrd's Amendment to Save Office of Comptroller General Is Defeated

WASHINGTON, March 24—(UP)—The senate today rejected the Byrd amendment to the executive department reorganization bill, 47 to 36, and cleared the way for a ballot on another move to recommit the administration bill.

The proposal of Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D. Va., would have protected the office of comptroller general from any change by the reorganization program.

Administration leaders were confident of an early favorable vote in the senate on passage of the reorganization effort.

The Byrd amendment was the last to be settled. Despite bipartisan support for it, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D. Ky., had predicted its defeat.

"Watch-Dog" Needed

Opponents of abolition of the comptroller general's office claim that it would remove the treasury's "watch-dog," that it was proposed by the administration, because the comptroller general "refused to approve appropriations not authorized by law."

The reorganization bill would provide an auditor general, not to pass on proposed expenditures but to audit of the receipts, expenditures, money securities and funds of the government.

Meanwhile, Sen. Sherman Minton, D. Ind., planned to call the senate lobby committee into executive session to determine whether Dr. Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, should be cited for contempt of the senate.

"Peace is the greatest interest of the British empire, but that does not mean that nothing will make us fight," Chamberlain said. He was greeted with tremendous cheers when he added: "We know that in war there are no winners."

He warned, however, that Britain might have to fight under existing commitments, without referring (Continued on Page Two)

TAG SALE SLOW IN CIRCLEVILLE

Than Half of Auto Drivers Have Permits; Deadline Near

Sale of auto and bicycle tags in Circleville has been "slow," registrars reported Thursday. James McLaughlin, deputy registrar in charge of the sale of auto tags, said approximately 1,400 licenses have been issued to date. Last year between 3,600 and 3,700 were sold, the registrar explained, so less than half of the motorists in this district have obtained their 1938 tags.

Frank West, state registrar of motor vehicles, has warned motorists that 1938 tags are required to operate automobiles after March 31. There will be no extension of time. "Motorists operating on or after April 1 with 1937 tags will be subject to arrest," he said.

Miss Martha Reid, who is handling the registration of bicycles, reported 149 had been issued up to noon Thursday. All vehicles ridden in the city must be registered before April 1. It is estimated that there are between 800 and 1,000 bicycles in Circleville.

AIR MAIL PLANE CRASHES, EIGHT PERSONS KILLED

PERPIGNAN, France, March 24—(UP)—Authorities feared today that eight persons had been killed in the crash of an Air France mail plane last night near Corsavy, in the Pyrenees.

The plane's cargo of mail also was believed to have been lost, but officials said it would be some time before rescue parties could reach the scene and determine definitely that the five passengers and three crew members were dead.

The plane carried northbound South American air mail from Dakar, touched at Casablanca, French Morocco, and Barcelona and then was caught in a severe snow storm.

Officers were not positive concerning the suspect's identity but intimated that he once served a jail sentence in Findlay for bootlegging.

FLAT TAX RATE OF 18 PERCENT TO BE CHARGED

Action Speeded By Pat Harrison In Effort To Aid Business

TWO RIDERS REFUSED

More Money To Be Sent Into Treasury

WASHINGTON, March 24—(UP)—The senate finance committee today eliminated the undistributed profits tax from its new draft of the general tax revision bill.

In its place, the committee agreed to place a flat tax rate of 18 percent on corporate income.

The committee action was taken as chairman Pat Harrison, D., Miss., speeded action on the measure in an effort to place it before the senate as rapidly as possible as an aid to business.

Elimination of the undistributed profits tax ran directly counter to administration recommendations.

"Riders" Defeated

The action was taken after the committee voted against attaching two important riders to the bill. One rider, by Sen. James P. Pope, D. Ida., would have established new processing tax levies to provide farm benefit funds. The other was the war profits bill of Sen. Tom Connally, D. Tex.

Harrison said the treasury estimated that the flat rate would produce $948,000,000 on the basis of 1935 income, as compared with $851,000,000 income anticipated from the undistributed profits tax provisions of the house-approved tax bill.

The committee placed in the bill a provision to lighten the tax burden of corporations with net incomes under $25,000. Under the provision such corporations would be allowed to deduct the difference between their income and $25,000 (Continued on Page Two)

HOODED OUTLAW FIGHTS FOSTORIA POLICE, ESCAPES

FOSTORIA, March 24—(UP)—A former bootlegger was suspected by authorities today of being the hooded bandit who has perpetrated more than a score of petty holdups in northwestern Ohio in the last six months.

The suspect escaped last night after a fight with police who sought to question him about an attempted burglary.

Four youths reported to police they had seen a man in the cellar of a grocery store. The cellar window was broken. The intruder fled without loot.

Later, Police Chief John Walsh and Patrolman Howard Hite accosted a man carrying two sacks and a shotgun. He refused to answer questions and felled Hite with a blackjack or some other instrument. The officers beat the suspect severely before he broke away and ran down an alley. He dropped the sacks as he ran.

No shots were fired in the scuffle.

Officers were not positive concerning the suspect's identity but intimated that he once served a jail sentence in Findlay for bootlegging.

YOUTHS LINKED WITH KIDNAPING OF LEVINE BOY

New Rochelle Chief Says "Connection" Possible In Abduction

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 24 (UP)—Police Capt. Thomas V. Kiernan said today that he believed Edward J. Penn, 18, and Werner F. Luck, 23, accused of attempting to extort $30,000 ransom from Murray Levine, had been "in some way connected with" the kidnaping a month ago of Levine's 12-year-old son, Peter.

"The fact that they were contemplating a kidnaping for about six months, according to information given me, shows that they are worth investigating," he said. "However, the mystery of the kidnaping is by no means solved with their arrest."

Kiernan said his informant, whom he declined to name, claimed to have heard Luck mention a plan to kidnap a "12-year-old" boy for ransom about six months ago.

Note Confessed

Luck and Penn were taken into custody last Saturday and questioned intensively by G-men and local police. Their arrest was announced yesterday, and it was said that they had confessed writing a "kidnap note" on March 5 in an attempt to collect the ransom, which Levine had announced he was ready to pay.

"If the letter they sent didn't bear the special symbol arranged between me and the kidnapers, they had nothing whatsoever to do with the kidnaping," Levine said last night. "The police would have informed me immediately if the letter bore the symbol."

Police found shoulder-length black hoods, chains with one-inch links, padlocks, a blank pistol and a decrepit rifle in the house in which Luck and Penn lived in North Pelham, N. Y., a village adjoining New Rochelle. It was believed they had acquired the trappings after reading about the Black Legion's activities in Michigan.

Luck, who has a wife and child, was freed on a pistol charge in his only previous arrest. Penn was put on parole for an auto theft in 1936. They will be arraigned before City Court Judge Thomas N. Fassio.

control committee reported one by Sen. George V. Norris, Ind., Neb., proposing the appropriation of $50,000 for an inquiry of T. V. A. by five senators. Norris planned to call it up today if the reorganization bill is passed.

10 Members Favored

Congressional leaders are committed to a joint house and senate investigation. Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley said that he would introduce a resolution calling for five members from each house, possibly as an amendment to the Norris' resolution.

Bridges' attempt to get consideration of his proposal angered Norris, who previously had consented to a compromise for a joint committee inquiry.

House leaders, who have withheld moves for an investigation pending President Roosevelt's action, asserted that the lower chamber would participate in whatever investigation is held.

"I'll tell you this much," said House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, D. Tex., "if it is not a joint investigation, then there will be two."

"The moment the senate passes a resolution providing only for a senate investigation," Rep. John O'Connor, D. N. Y., said, "you can bet the rules committee will immediately report a resolution for a house investigation."

He said that the house would demand chairmanship of a joint committee, since the T. V. A. is the "house's baby."

before computing the 18 percent tax.

For example, Harrison pointed out, a corporation has an annual net income of $10,000. The corporation would be given a credit of 10 percent of the difference between $10,000 and $25,000—which would provide a credit of $1,500. This would be subtracted from $10,000 and the tax would be imposed on the remainder, $8,500.

NEWARK, N. J., March 24 (UP)—Former Gov. Harold C. # COURT'S DECREE BARS OHIO FROM HIGH TRUCK FEE

COLUMBUS, March 24 (UP)

A temporary order compelling the state liquor department to cease paying 17 cents a case for trucking of liquor and instead pay a maximum of 11 1/2 cents a case was issued today by Common Pleas Judge John R. King.

The order was issued "in keeping with good business and with good public policy," Judge King said.

Application for the order was filed by Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, as a taxpayer, in connection with her suit to recover $350,000 which had been paid illegally to Shaw Transport, Inc., by the liquor department.

The senate graft investigating committee recently exposed the fact that the Shaw firm, in which John Nolan, Steubenville, Democratic leader, is a one-third stockholder, contracted to haul liquor at 17 cents a case but actually sub-let the contract to U. S. trucking lines at 11 1/2 cents a case.

"We are bound by certain treaty obligations which entail on us the necessity of fighting if occasion arises," he explained.

The prime minister admitted that his original belief in the League of Nations as an instrument for preserving peace had been "profoundly shattered," adding that "we tried to impose on the league a task beyond its powers to fulfill."

"I did not cease to believe," he declared, "in the possibility that the league might be so revived and strengthened as to serve as an effective instrument for the preservation of peace... that is not the position today."

He then expressed hope that the league might be so reformed as to "become a most effective guarantee of peace."

WHAT IS RIGHT?

"THERE are those who say," observes a minister, "that what passes for conscience is just the voice of some widely organized section of society, or some particular point of view. But if conscience is only the voice of the herd, why is it that conscience protests against the tyranny of the group, as Niemoeller in Germany and Kagawa in Japan has been doing?"

Conscience, he concludes, is more than the mere voice of the group. But it needs to be educated in order to become a dependable guide to conduct. And in educating it, he gives these rules, along with those commonly enjoined by religion:

First, don't lie to yourself—be true to yourself.

Second, give due weight to the experience of the race.

Third, consider whether it will hurt other people. Anything which will injure or destroy life is wrong.

Some might suggest a still broader principle: "Whatever works is right." That is, in the long run. Good is practical. Evil doesn't work — it tends to destroy itself.

TOO LITTLE SAVED

THE American people refuse to save for a rainy day. Or perhaps they are unable to do so. The Bureau of Labor Statistics provides facts for such conclusions as these:

One dollar out of three goes for food. One dollar out of ten goes for clothing. One dollar out of twenty, for amusement and recreation. The typical family has about three per cent of its income left over for the church, community welfare and gifts or contributions to persons outside the family. Only forty cents out of every $100, or $5 to $6 a year, goes for educational purposes.

Most families spend more for movies than for reading. There is generous use of free public libraries and inexpensive rental libraries, but the purchase of books is low for a country of the supposed education, intelligence and prosperity of the United States.

The saddest fact is that many families spend more than they receive in the course of a year. "Taken as a whole," says a pamphlet on this subject, "the families of wage earners and clerical employees spent every cent of their earnings in 1936. New York City families spent an average of $96 more during the year than they received. Two families out of every three in Chicago having an income of less than $1,000 spent more than they earned."

It looks as if we need a good deal more preaching and practicing in the matter of income-budgeting.

WAGNER FOR GOVERNOR

WASHINGTON—The New York gubernatorial race, always the most fascinating in the country because of its presidential possibilities, has taken an interesting turn.

Latest move is toward the nomination of Senator Bob Wagner for the governorship and Judge Ferdinand Pecora for his place in the Senate. This move has been talked about before, but met no response from Senator Wagner.

Of late, however, he has been more sympathetic. Reason is that his son, Robert F., Jr., is a member of the New York Assembly and the Senator, who is wrapped up in the boy, would like nothing better than being with him at Albany.

From a harmony viewpoint the combination would be admirable. Wagner has fathered more New Deal legislation than almost any other Senator. But he is also acceptable to Tammany and Old Guard Democrats. Simultaneously the Administration would gain a hard-hitting New Deal Senator in Ferd Pecora, who put through the famous stock exchange investigation for the Senate.

NOTE—Under ordinary circumstances, Wagner's election as Governor of New York would have important presidential possibilities, but it happens that he was born in Germany. Presidents must be natives of the United States.

LEWIS RUNS MEXICO

The State Department still does not know about it, but John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. played an important part in the seizure of American oil companies in Mexico.

What happened was this: Before the Mexican oil workers moved in, they communicated with Lewis and asked his advice. Specifically they wanted to know whether they should take over the American oil companies and whether they would have the support of American labor if they did.

The Supreme Court of Mexico handed down a decision requiring the oil companies to pay higher wage and retirement compensation scale to the oil workers, and Lewis, in his reply, cited this. He said that no one had a right to disobey the ruling of the Supreme Court of any country and that it was up to the oil companies to comply with its decree.

The Mexican oil workers' union waited for Lewis' advice and then moved in. With the Mexican Government, they are now attempting to operate the oil companies' property.

John L. Lewis has reason to speak feelingly regarding Supreme Court and other legal decisions. The Supreme Court's Schechter decision invalidated the N. R. A. and the wage set-ups of the miners. After that he secured the passage of the Guffey Coal Act to permit wage and price agreements in the coal field. This was invalidated by the Supreme Court. More recently, federal courts have prevented the Bituminous Coal Commission from fixing the price of coal.

Lewis has adhered to all the Court decrees and sought through legislation to rectify the situations thus created.

One More Wedding

by HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just sailed for a few weeks abroad. Among his friends at the pier to see him off was Barbara Kingsley who came to New York the day before to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in one another a few weeks previously when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an author and friend of Garry, takes a kindly interest in Barbara after Garry sails. Barbara finds an apartment. A few days later Ruth Merryweather, attractive heiress and another close friend of Garry's, invites her to luncheon at her penthouse. Ruth asks Barbara permission to meet Bill Jameson, an old friend, now married, for a chat in Barbara's apartment. Barbara is glad to oblige her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 10

IF BARBARA had doubted that Bill's feeling toward Ruth Merryweather held more than friendship she dispelled it at once. He was genuinely glad to see Ruth. It was evident that Ruth was a relief to him from all women—yes, even from Marie. Only he didn't know that. Bill was wearing the knees of his trousers shiny with worshipping at the feet of the girl from Martinsville.

He was interesting, courteous, humorous. Because he was puzzled by situations, he laughed at them and did nothing.

Barbara excused herself and went into the bedroom where she read a story and listened to the neighbor's radio that had found a Strauss waltz somewhere. It wasn't long until Ruth summoned her.

"Bill wanted to say good night," she explained.

"I'll be seeing you next week, I think," he told Barbara. "Your cousin is dropping in. It's the Marine Roof Thursday, isn't it?" he appealed to both of them.

Then he went away and Ruth shook her head. "Barbara, that boy was downright ungracious about accepting a job with my folk even when he deserved it. My father and uncle never give away promotions. And now, because of Ruth, he's asking. He'll earn his way, but doesn't know how to go about it. He isn't lazy—but he needs to depend on someone for stimulus."

"Is he disappointed about England?" Barbara asked.

"Only because Marie will be no man ever sang such a perpetual serenade to his goddess! He ought to say, 'Now see here, young lady, I have a perfectly good job that is going to be worth something some day. You buy an arithmetic and learn to budget and we can be friends with our creditors.' Or he won't. He'll let her upset his whole life."

It seemed odd for the girl who was heiress to the Merryweather millions to talk so matter-of-factly. Barbara began to laugh. "Could you live on a vegetable stew and two pounds of love?" she asked.

Ruth wrinkled her nose. "I know what you're thinking. But I could have done it and liked it. That is, I thought I could. But I'm boring you to death. The honest truth is that I thought if I got out of sight of Bill's profile, and out of sound of his voice, I could forget him as one does a book one puts by. But if he can't get going, I'll have to."

Barbara discovered that Ruth had eaten no dinner. Barbara had stopped for a sandwich only so she stirred up a rarebit and made toast. They sat at the gate-legged table and chatted as they ate. Gradually Barbara began to understand that Ruth was lonely in spite of her position and popularity. She never knew if people liked her because she mattered as a person or because she represented a golden-haired, blue-eyed dollar sign. Sometimes a friendship is born swiftly but it assumes such stability that you grope for unseen roots. It was that way tonight.

Julia leaned across the table and spoke softly to Ruth.

Ruth looked at the clock at last. "Oh, I must fly. Annie will wonder where I went. I didn't leave any message. She's been in the family for years. Now that all the rest of the family are at the shore, she keeps a double guard on me."

Ruth looked tired and fragile. She would go back to a beautiful penthouse but it would be lonely. Without any need of explanation, Barbara knew that Ruth had stayed in town so she could help Bill and Marie. Yet she herself needed comfort more than they.

"Ruth, why don't you stay all night?" That was an impulsive question. Ruth, who had a suite of her own, with silken sheets on a canopied bed, had never slept on a studio couch. It was done now—Ruth was invited.

Ruth's eyes widened and her lips smiled. "Honestly, may I?"

"I'd adore it."

"Drifting to sleep, a little later, Barbara thought of Garry. He would be glad that Ruth was here. If only Ruth could become interested in some other man, even for a little while. A man who deserved her. But not Garry? Never, never Garry!

By the time the day of the Jamesons' dinner came, Barbara felt that she had known Ruth for a long time. She was glad that Ruth was picking her up to go to the party. Meantime, she wondered why Julia hadn't had the common decency to call her. Julia would have to be invited down here, of course, yet she hesitated. This was home, and she didn't want Julia's shadow, transient as it would be, to rest on the serenity of the long room, whose dormer windows opened so graciously to wind and sun and stars and rain.

Marie telephoned Barbara, at her office, that day. She wasted no time in preliminaries. "One of the men I've invited can't be present. You know Jack Metcalf, don't you, Barbara darling? He was at your table one night—Remember? I've met him so briefly but Julia loves his books. Do you suppose—"

Julia would love his books, Barbara decided. Jack would be busy, or up at Newport, perhaps. August was a hard time to find dinner partners for visiting girls. Still, it might be amusing to surprise Julia by ringing along a literary lion, if Jack could be located. Julia was an amateur at Jack's game. It would be fun to watch.

Ruth knew Jack's address at Newport. It developed he had gone up for the week-end. Yes, he would come down for the dinner since he had to keep an appointment at 11 the next morning anyway.

Thus it happened that Barbara, slim and lovely in a new black organza dinner frock, against which she wore three white orchids Jack had sent, entered the Marine Roof with an author and an heiress and presented them lightly and gaily, as though all of her life she had been knocking at social doors. She smiled as she recalled the morning, such a few weeks ago, when she had nestled at the door of Garry's cabin.

And when she thought of Garry her heart beat more swiftly. His month was up. He would be back soon. He had written to her twice and sent three picture postcards—one of Kennisworth, one of Stokes Podge where Grey wrote his Elegy, and one of himself taken on a London street. I was not certain if the producer was sailing back this week on the Queen Mary or next week on the Normandie. But it would be soon—

Julia's beauty had not lessened, Barbara noted. Apparently she had bought herself a new evening frock. It was silvery-white—stars shone, winds rang, snow blew in its shimmering folds. But its brightness did not dim the gold head above it. Even Ruth, in a lavender as smooth as violet ice cream, which had cost many times the amount of any other dress present, was dimmed by the other girl's radiance.

Julia ordered a Martini. She ordered another one and another one, and Barbara found herself slipping into the old family relationship. Julia must be stopped. She wasn't used to this. But Julia was feeling challenging and provocative. She leaned across the table and spoke softly to Ruth, in a tone that carried without strain.

"You're the girl who wanted to marry Bill, aren't you? But all of your money couldn't buy him!" (To Be Continued)

Easy to Reduce at Lunch If You Follow Menus

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT'S VERY EASY to reduce any person any amount if you lock him in a room, to which there is only one key, and see that nothing except what the dietitian supervises goes into that room. I know of a man who was reduced in this way from 500 odd pounds to 190—entirely without exercise, only by reducing the food intake.

But the point is, he was locked in a room. It is also easy, but not quite as certain, to reduce a person at home if he eats all his (planned) meals there. Not as certain, because he may sneak a cookie or what is in reach when he's hungry.

The menace to reduction schemes is the reducer at large—especially at luncheon time away from home. Dining out is also a menace, but the way to overcome that is too obvious to need comment.

So I print today six reducing lunches. The reducer should clip the list from the paper and keep it in the purse or billfold. When you go into a restaurant or cafe for lunch, pull out the list and choose any ONE lunch you want. These are so arranged that the order can be filled in any restaurant or cafeteria. There are no substitute breads or butter. If you crave bread and butter, your chance to get it is at lunch.

The same effect can be accomplished by using "Abramson's Self-Selecting Reducing Diet" (50 cents, distributed by Argus Books, 333 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.).

Lunches

One frankfurter and sauerkraut, one slice whole wheat bread or rye bread with thin spread of butter, tea or black coffee.

Spinach (not creamed and without butter, Golden Spread may be used) with two slices hard boiled egg, two or three soy bean wafers, black coffee, skimmed milk or buttermilk.

Cottage cheese, one helping; one slice goose liver sausage, salad of lettuce.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

sliced radishes, sliced cucumbers, watercress; sliced tomato with lemon juice—no salad dressing; black coffee.

One egg, any style; one slice bread or toast with thin spread of butter, portion of cabbage slaw, black coffee.

One serving of broiled whitefish or one serving of lamb, one slice of bread, whole wheat bread or rye bread with thin spread of butter; sliced raw apple, tomato juice.

Dish of stewed tomatoes, coffee, tea or milk.

Diet for Tuesday
BREAKFAST—Soy bean toast and Golden Spread butter, black coffee.

DINNER—Consomme, half a broiled chicken, string beans; gluten bread and Golden Spread, black coffee, cottage cheese pie.

Recipe for Crust—Put through sieve one-half cup rye bread crumbs, one-half cup ground almonds, one-third cup melted butter, one dash cinnamon. For Filling—One cup dry cream cheese, two eggs, beaten together; one and one-half grains saccharin, a small square butter, one teaspoon vanilla.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Washington is not altogether unaccustomed to seeing a member of its foreign diplomatic corps officially eliminated by a revolution in his home country.

In part cases of this sort, however, the obliterated plenipotentiary's embassy or legation has not evaporated, too. The incoming overseas government always has been prompt to send a new emissary to take over the duties of his kicked-out predecessor without much of a break in relations, if any.

The German absorption of Austria presents a problem of a new kind.

EVAPORATES!

One afternoon recently Austria had in our capital a regularly recognized legation, presided over by Minister Edgar L. G. Prochnik.

Next morning it transpired that Austria no longer existed as an independent country, entitled to representation in the United States—to a minister, consuls or anything else, any more than the state of Arizona, for example, is entitled to diplomatic representation abroad.

Prochnik was still here, but no longer in a position even to bid an official farewell to the state department. His legation had ceased to be a legation. It consulates had ceased to be consulates, with no certainly that there was any authority back of them to be depended on for so much as to pay their office rent.

IN THE AIR

Minister (or ex-Minister) Prochnik and his satellites, of course, are left out on a limb.

But the U. S. state department was puzzled.

Some quite important commercial negotiations were pending between Washington and Vienna when Vienna, as a government, vanished into thin atmosphere.

President Roosevelt decided that, legally speaking, the United States did not know of any change in Austro-German relations. The state department thereupon treated Austria as an independent nation, granting her certain trade benefits and withholding them from Germany.

ONCE BEFORE

It is a more confusing situation than followed even the overthrow of the Kerensky Russian government in early post-war days.

The czar had had a government—bad, but recognized.

Then Kerensky. That was a revolution, but the change was recognized. That officialized matters, state departmentally speaking. In a few months came the Soviet regime. We refused to recognize that. Nevertheless, Russia owned real property (an embassy building) in Washington. Whose was it? Not the Kerensky-ites; they were extinct. Not the Soviets; they were unrecognized.

FINALLY—

For years that question hung fire. The unrecognized Russian embassy building on Sixteenth street sat there, with nobody except a caretaker in charge.

Repeatedly I questioned state department officials. They said: "It is as if someone had died, leaving an estate in litigation. We are awaiting the final decision."

The decision came when, at long last, the United States recognized the Soviets.

They got the embassy.

UNPRECEDENTED

Yet there had been, all the time, a Russian government—on hand to assert its claim when recognized, as, finally, it was.

But Austria now, seemingly, never will be a government again.

Then what? Will its embassy be a ghost of an embassy forever? Or will we have to recognize that German grab? It is unprecedented.

The Deadwood Coach

OR A MODERN STREAMLINER?

Sending money in the old days by the Deadwood Coach was more picturesque than practical. Delivery was slow and uncertain, with Indians and bandits a constant threat.

This is the age of air mail service and coast to coast railroad "streamliners." Today less than 10% of all commercial transactions are settled in cash. The accepted method is to pay by check.

Why not pay your bills through this bank in this modern way—and gain in ease, security, and credit standing?

Athletes Feted
The school colors of gold and black predominated on the tables and in the decorations Wednesday evening when parents were hosts to members of the Pickaway township boys' and girls' basketball teams, members of the faculty and the board of education at the annual athletic banquet.

The auditorium was decorated with long gold and black streamers, hanging from the ceiling to the several tables around which the guests were seated. Above the center of the room was suspended a net which held a basketball. Potted Spring flowers were placed on each table.

After the banquet, served by boys and girls of the senior class not members of the basketball squad, music played by a Columbus trio was enjoyed.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

A COMMON disfigurement of an otherwise well groomed lawn is raggedness along the edges of walks or flower beds.

Fig. 1 of this Garden-Graph shows a common type of lawn edging which sooner or latter becomes "chewed" and unsightly. The vertical sides of this type of edge soon break down, either as a result of being "walked down" or from being "gouged" by the lawn mower.

Fig. 2 shows the edge of a lawn as it should slope slightly upwards towards a walk, rather than down, as in Fig. 1. This permits good drainage for the walk and makes it easy to cut the grass edge with a mower.

Fig. 3 shows a lawn strip correctly sloped down to a flower bed. When sloped in this manner the grass edge can be kept neatly trimmed without the constant tendency to cut away the edge, thus widening the flower bed.

FARMERS START SPRING SOWING UNDER NEW PLAN

Adjusted Program Formed To Act As Stabilizer For Industry

F. D. R. SUMMARIZES

Act Is Result Of Nation Crop Emergency

WASHINGTON, March 24—(UP)—The new farm program is the culmination of five years of New Deal efforts to stabilize agricultural production, insure farmers a "fair share" of the national income and conserve the nation's soil resources.

President Roosevelt summarized objectives of the new program as: "By experience we have learned what must be done to assure to agriculture a fair share of an increasing national income, to provide consumers with abundant supplies of food and fiber, to stop waste of soil and to reduce the gap between huge surpluses and disastrous shortages."

"The nation is now agreed that we must have greater reserves of food and feed to use in years of damaging weather and to help iron out the extreme ups and downs of prices . . ."

Five Years of Extremes
In five years farmers have run the economic gamut of unprecedented extremes—short crops and high prices, bumper crops and low prices. Two of the most severe droughts on record were sandwiched in between years of abundance.

Huge crops and paralyzed markets caused extreme suffering in 1932 and 1933. The 1934 and 1936 droughts caused human privation and the destruction of millions of livestock to prevent the animals' starving. Favorable weather in 1937 caused huge surpluses to again pile up.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration was the New Deal's first answer to the farm problem. It became law on May 12, 1933.

The immediate objective was to reduce price-depressing surpluses for which there were no markets. Export demand had dwindled to a fraction of the boom years. Cotton farmers plowed under every third row and livestock growers killed millions of little pigs and brood sows.

Destitute Reach Two Million
Then the 1934 drought struck like a plague. More than 2,000,000 farm families were made destitute and dependent upon the government disaster was repeated in 1936 in many sections of the ment for food and clothing. The country.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court had, on Jan. 6, 1936, declared the AAA system of production contracts and processing taxes unconstitutional. The Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, successor to the AAA, became a law on Feb. 29, 1936.

Payments for soil conservation and reductions in soil-depleting crops from a $500,000,000-a-year Federal appropriation replaced production-control contracts and processing taxes. One year of favorable weather overflowed granaries in 1937.

Farm prices slumped under sur-

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU

BY BOB BURNS

It seems to me that no matter how good and sincere a professional man is, if he deals with the public and wants to be a financial success, he has to use a certain amount of showmanship.

One time my Aunt Boo started to complain and she went to every doctor down home but none of 'em could find anything much wrong with her. Finally she went to the city and saw a specialist and he says "Lady, what you need is oxygen—come here every afternoon for your inhalations—they will cost you $5.00 each."

Aunt Boo says "There! I just knew them doctors down home didn't know their business—they told me all I needed was plain, fresh air!"

Notes of Interest From Ashville and Community

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

The venerable Lewis Bartley, who has been making his home in Ashville for considerable time with the family of Marion Glick, will in the near future go to the home of his daughter in Hagerstown, Maryland. Mr. Bartley is the son of the late George Bartley one of the Ashville pioneers . . . O. E. Smith, a son of the late Orlando and Mrs. Smith, Madison township, and who served as a manual training teacher for some years in Groveport, is conducting an insurance agency in Mt. Gilead and as a sideline, is a candidate for the nomination for representative from Morrow county.

In the near future Mrs. A. W. Baker will remove from the Squire dwelling she now occupies to a part of the Mrs. Johnson home now occupied by William Curry and wife, the last named removing to the property recently purchased by Mrs. Griffith. Luther Poling and family will occupy the place made vacant by Mrs. Baker. Mrs. Griffith will temporarily store her household goods until she can find a location . . . M. L. (Doc) Snyder is reported seriously ill at the home of his daughter plus-burdened markets. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace appealed for new legislation for establishment of an ever-normal granary for storage of surpluses and to adjust production to demand.

President Roosevelt, declaring that a national emergency existed, called Congress into special session in November. Congress passed the new farm program on Feb. 14, 1938, and President Roosevelt signed it on Feb. 16.

near Worthington. He is a brother of Mrs. Emma Griffith, Ashville.

Work at Mayor's Home

Mayor Fraunfelder with several workmen, is modernizing his home which is located immediately north of the Methodist parsonage. Fred Hines, Wendell Canters and Clums are to move soon as the one on the lead makes a start. More movers tomorrow, maybe . . . The inside decorations, painters and paper hangers, are a plenty busy now. House cleaning is on in earnest. E. F. Traule is giving the Mrs. Rose Hedges dwelling "the once over" getting it ready for the new occupants.

Teams Feted

Tonight the Parent-Teachers are banqueting the basketball teams at the school auditorium. Besides the chicken dinner eats, there is to be several talks and music is to be furnished by the Mt. Sterling orchestra. And Friday evening the annual musical concert will be held at the same place beginning at 8:15. It is instrumental music. The local orchestra is to be joined with that of West Jefferson. A real musical treat is in store for those who attend . . .

Court in Session

At headquarters the Supreme Court held a lively session and politics, national, state and county, get more than the "once over." County commissioner, Ed. Wright, has been made a member of The Court and is expected to attend session regularly. Cliff Smith of Madison was also in Court and attentively listened to arguments. But being from Madison, he never would be permitted to serve on any Herb Hoover jury because of prejudice. Says he has an 100-year-old almanac at home and says he will bring it to us on his next trip.

Cleanup Solved

How to keep downtown central Ashville clean and looking fine every day, has been solved and work has already begun. G. A. Hook, the longtime stove man on the corner, we caught "dead to rights" early one morning (didn't say Sunday) with broom, shovel and a carton and the whole street gutter and all about his place, was made to shine as it never shone before. And it appeared so fine when he had completed the job, that, while he has not said so, feel sure he will keep the good work going and invites the other business men to join in and keep the business section shining every day. April 6, Wednesday evening, is the date for the next Community Club meet.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

There are 3500 people every month to whom Uncle Sam's postmen bring a portrait of Gene Autry. And these 3500 people are significant because they prove to motion-picture producers just who is the choice of the people. At the present time, from all indications, Gene Autry is tops not only with the orthodox western fans, but with a large percentage of straight picture fans as well.

Gene's musical westerns for Republic go over best of all in fairly large-sized towns, towns of from 10,000 to 150,000 in population. From this nobody can say that cowboy pictures are popular only in the sticks. Gene's newest picture for Republic, "Springtime in the Rockies," is showing at the Cliftona Theatre Friday and Saturday on a Double Bill with "No Time to Marry", to a highly appreciative audience, which indicates by its reaction that Autry is welcome whenever the Cliftona books him.

Gene's horse, Champion, is an important factor in his screen success, and believe it or not, Champ has a good many fans in his own right, people who send him lumps of sugar, and beg for hairs from his tail for souvenirs.

FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN
HAROLD K. CLAYPOOL

ALIENS—The Immigration Committee has reported to the House a bill denying American citizenship to any person believing in or affiliated with an organization that advocates a change in the present form of the U. S. Government.

YOUTH—A program costing a half billion dollars for vocational guidance and employment of youths between ages of 16 and 25 is proposed by the Lundeen bill to help American youth. The bill is at present being heard in a Senate Education and Labor Subcommittee.

NATIONAL DEFENSE—After the authorization bill becomes law, the President will make final decision on speed of the expansion and rate of expenditure. It is predicted by naval officers that there will be annual naval appropriations of $750,000,000 or $200,000,000 more than the pending record-breaking 1939 naval appropriation bill.

BOYCOTT—An unofficial boycott in this country it is said, has caught Japan off guard and has reduced sharply the imports of goods from Japan. As a result war financing plans have been upset.

WATER CONSERVATION—A special message from President Roosevelt outlined to Congress a six year plan for conservation and development of the Nation's water resources. It is said the President has three or four messages to be delivered.

ACCIDENTS—Ten million accidents serious enough to disable their victims one day or longer occur annually in the U. S.—30,000 daily. Each day, 500,000 persons in the U. S. are unable to work, go to school or pursue other usual activities as the result of injuries caused by accidents.

YOUTHFUL SKIPPERS—Under the new plan of the Maritime Commission, young skippers among the youth of America will be given a chance to further their ambitions. The new plan sets up a training system to provide officers for the merchant marine. Those eligible for positions of "Cadet officer" aboard Government-owned or Federally subsidized vessels, must be applicants graduated from state nautical schools, the U. S. Naval Academy, and the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, holding third mate or third assistant engineer licenses.

BUSINESS MEN'S BUREAU—The farmers of the U. S. have a bureau to perform services for them—the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Now the Business Men are to have a similar bureau for their services. The Commerce Department is setting up a new Bureau of Industrial Economics to study problems of industry.

LICENSING BILL—Under the Borah-O'Mahoney bill for licensing corporations, all corporations engaged in interstate commerce would be required to obtain license from the Federal Government. Such a bill would make it possible for the U. S. Government to know in just what financial condition the corporations are in.

CCC—300 CCC camps will be closed before June 1, in order to reduce the strength of the corps from 300,000 to 250,000. The reduction will take place even though applications for enrollments have shown a continued increase instead of decrease. Approximately 4,000 supervisory and administrative officials will be dismissed also.

BASEBALL WORLD AWAITS REPLY TO LANDIS' ATTACK ON CARDINALS

About This And That In Many Sports

WATCH FOR ASHVILLE!

It's a long while before another county basketball season comes around, but already the expected strength of the Asheville Cowboys is causing concern in court circles : : : Unless something unexpected happens, Al Kauber should have one of the strongest teams in county history on the hardwood next Fall and Winter : : : The Harrison township center loses Chuck Gray and Red Mallory of his 1937-38 outfit : : : Returning will be Bernard Walden, Junior Gregg, Barney Roese of the first five, McCandlish, Forouer, Vause, and Hoover of the second squad : : : Gregg and Roese have two more years each, McCandlish, who may develop into an ace, is a freshman now * * *

PIRATES LOSE MANY

Moving down into Pickaway township, where Carl Burger's lads have won two consecutive titles it is found that most of the Pirates' strength is lost by graduation : : : Creighton Anderson, Ralph Dunkle, Jay Warner, and Junior Graves travel on, leaving George Wilson, Jim Boggs, Roy Dunkle and Richard Penn to carry on : : : At New Holland, Speakman, Mossbarger and Ebert are lost, returning lettermen being Louis and Davis : : : Scioto loses Earl Wilson and therein lies a basketball team. * * *

PROSPECTS NOT BAD

Right here in Circleville, prospects are not so bad after the way Jack Landrum's boys developed during the last season : : : Whitey Davis, Paul Walters, and several other competent lads including some flashily reserve material will be available. * * *

SEASON FOR BANQUETS

This is the season for banquets, Pickaway feting its boys and girls Wednesday evening, and Asheville being scheduled for another to night : : : Several of the schools have already conducted their events * * *

Love-Lorn Snipe Dance By Night

By "DING" DARLING

The crime of excessive drainage hit this all-American bird, Wilsons snipe or "jacksnipe," terribly hard.

There isn't a section of the United States, from Alaska to Florida, where there is bogland that the jacksnipe doesn't visit. It breeds from right up close to the arctic circle through a wide belt of country down into New Jersey, then spends its Winters over an expanse of territory that takes in North Carolina, California, and the southernmost part of Brazil.

With its swift, weaving flight and its plaintive cry of "Scap, scap!" as it takes wing, the jacksnipe is the familiar sprite of the lowlands, the damp pasture, the muddy shore of lake and stream.

The jacksnipe comes and goes mysteriously on its migration journeys. The farmer finds a colony of snipe busy probing in his meadow on an October morning where he has never before seen a snipe, and as abruptly, they're all gone.

"Crazy birds," the old marshmen used to call them; some days they'd be tame and trusting, other days wild and wary. In the Spring the jacksnipe does a mating song and dance act in the air, at night mostly, and when you've heard the performance you've been right close to the spirit of the marsh. Woodcock have a similar mating exhibition. In fact, woodcock and snipe have a lot in common, in appearance and habits, except that snipe keep to open country and woodcock haunt the brushy bogs.

Jacksnipe have sadly decreased in the past quarter century due to the craze for changing marshes which once yielded profitable crops of fur, fowl and fish into sour, unproductive farm lands on which the new crops were never able to pay the drainage bonds.

CARAS DEFEATS PONZI

NEW YORK, March 24—(UP)—Jimmy Caras, 29, Wilmington, Del., was king pocket billiard player today. He regained the title he formerly held by downing another ex-title-holder, Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia, 125-22 in the final match of the second playoff necessitated by ties in the three-week tourney which ended Saturday night.

RICKEY STUDIES 9-PAGE VERDICT HITTING 'CHAIN'

Jimmy Webb, Shortstop For Columbus Last Year, One Of Players Involved

SYSTEM'S OPERATION HIT

Control Of Two Clubs In One League Cause

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 24 — (UP)—The baseball world waited today for Branch Rickey's answer to Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis' denunciation of the St. Louis Cardinal's methods of operating their "chain store baseball system."

In nearby St. Petersburg, Rickey promised to reply in detail to the findings of Commissioner Landis, but asked time to digest the Landis' nine pages and nearly 5,000 words.

"At this time the Springfield decision seems harsh," Rickey said.

The aftermath of Landis' decision which declared an estimated 100 players free agents and assessed fines totaling $2,176 on three Cardinal farm clubs, Springfield, Mo., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, both of the Western league and Sacramento, Pacific league, may not be known for some time.

It may be the beginning of a war between Landis and Rickey over "chain store baseball" or it may prove to be an unimportant decision affecting a lot of "5 and 10" ball players.

The only Cardinal players who may be involved, are Shortstop Jimmy Webb and Outfielder Johnny Hopp. Webb was with Cedar Rapids in 1935 and 1936 and played with Columbus last year. Hopp was with the Mitchell club of the Nebraska league in 1936 and came up this Spring from Rochester.

Only 17 players of the Monett club of the Arkansas-Missouri league have been made free agents by Landis. All players belonging to Cedar Rapids with the exception of James F. Howard were declared free agents, but Landis, needing more time to identify them, won't list their names for several days.

In making his decision, Landis said that the honesty of baseball had to be protected, that "an individual club cannot and will not be allowed to make a contract destructive of public confidence in baseball's integrity."

The investigation goes back as far as 1934 and involves 12 teams in the Cardinal chain gang. Most of the players affected, however, played with either Cedar Rapids or Monett. Other clubs involved include Danville and Springfield in the Three-I League, Jamestown in the Northern league, Mitchell in the Nebraska state league, Fayetteville in the Arkansas-Missouri league, Crookston and Newport in the Northeast Arkansas league, association, and Sacramento in the Pacific coast league.

In effect, Landis' decision will prevent the Cedar Rapids club making a working agreement with the Cardinals or any other club which operates a team in the same league where St. Louis has a farm club. It also bars any player affected signing with the Cardinals or any of its affiliate clubs for a period of three years.

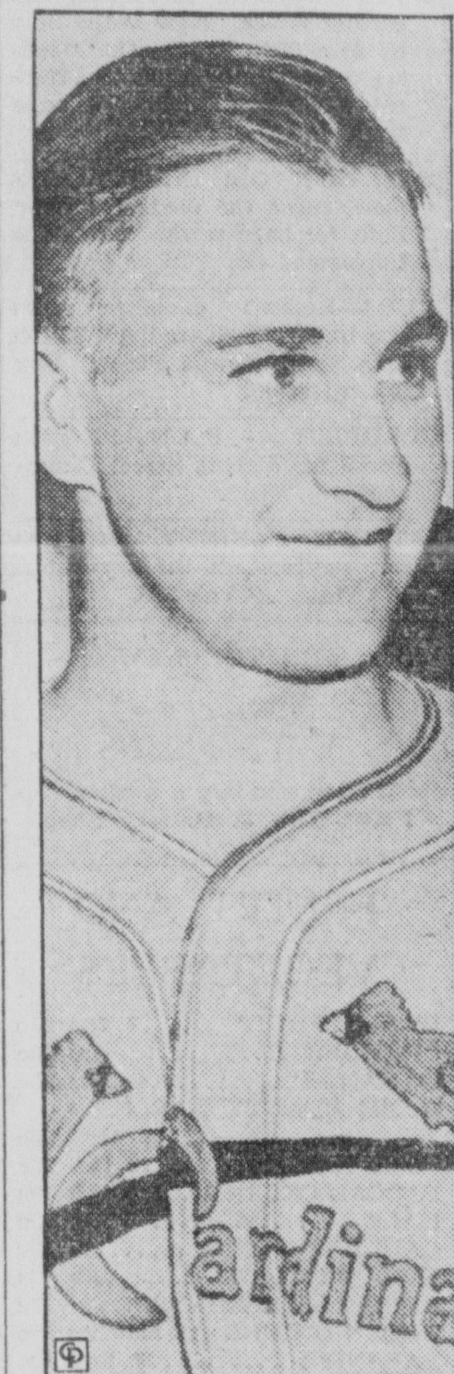

It was brought to light by Landis' decision that the Cardinals operated two clubs Springfield and Danville, in the Three-I league at the same time. Referring to this situation, Landis said:

"Here is a pennant race in the Three-I league that in as far as the principal is concerned, just as important as if it were a pennant race in the National or American league. You have the power to say to them, this avenue of strength to your club we will shut. It is pretty plain that it would be bad for the league, wouldn't it."

YANKS PLAY BEARS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24—(UP)—The New York Yankees entertained their International league farm hands—the Newark Bears today. The Yanks took a 6-2 decision from the Boston Bees yesterday for their sixth victory in nine starts. The New Yorkers go to Sebring for a return game with the Bears tomorrow.

Holdouts Lack Fireworks Of Other Spring Seasons

ATLANTA, Ga., March 24—(UP)—Baseball fans who feast on holdout news each spring, are on a diet these days and have been all along in 1938 because those who play for pay are falling in line like tenpins.

A year ago, for example, the air was filled with fireworks and some players even threatened to quit the game.

Dizzy Dean was one of them, and he went so far as to take the dispute up with Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner.

When Breadon tersely announced he would grant Dizzy's request to place him on the retired list, the big right-hander hurried to the phone to come to terms—at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Paul Waner Stubborn in 1937 Paul Waner, the Pirates' outfield star and three times National League batting champion, was another who stayed out until well past the deadline. Waner finally consented to meet the Pirates in Texas when they were en route home from their California training camp. H signed a contract a few days before the official season opened.

Red Ruffing was the year's champion holdout, and it was not until mid-May that he donned a uniform. Ruffing lost a month's pay, but made it back by winning games for the Yankees.

Today all these stars are in the fold, and working out with their respective teams.

Even Lou Gehrig, who promised to become a stubborn holdout this year, agreed to terms a week ago and has joined the Yankees at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Derringer Threatened to Quit Paul Derringer threatened to retire to his Sarasota, Fla., home when the Cincinnati Reds offered him a $10,000 salary cut. But the big right-hander changed his mind and reached an agreement with the Reds before the training season was far along.

Catcher Billy Sullivan, traded to the Browns by Cleveland, went to the trouble of packing his bags and declaring he would not sign. The next day he was in the fold.

Zeke Bonura, the slugging first baseman who refused to come to terms with the Chicago White Sox, found himself traded to the Washington Senators for Joe Kuhel.

DiMaggio Misses Training Joe DiMaggio is the star holdout of the year, with his demand of $40,000. But most fans believe Joe is simply avoiding training camp, and has no hope of getting $40,000 for his services.

There are others, but not many. Clyde (Slick) Castleton of the Giants hasn't signed, but neither is he sure a back injury has healed.

Wally Moses of the Athletics, Eric McNair of the Red Sox and Julius Solters of the Indians are three others who have not signed.

Joe Stripp, whom Brooklyn traded to the Cardinals, staged his annual spring strike, but when the St. Louis club sent him to Columbus, one of their many farm teams, Stripp said he would join the semi-pros.

And that is just about the crop, which baseball followers admit is pretty slim even for a period of recession.

TIGERS MEET RODGERS LAKELAND, Fla., March 24—(UP)—The Detroit Tigers were aiming for their third straight exhibition victory today, meeting the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Bengals came from behind to tie the score in the ninth and tally five times in the 10th to beat the Washington Senators 9-4 yesterday. The Dodgers finally chuffed off a Cincinnati rally after six runs had crossed the plate in the ninth to nose the Reds 14-13 in a wild game at Clearwater. It was Brooklyn's second win in five tilts.

that, hoping to find the best combination before the season opens. Whatever choice he makes, the Cards will have an adequate if not gorgeous infield.

The Dean brothers are question marks. Dizzy seems ready to go, but the younger Dean was hit hard in his last training camp effort. Lon Warneke looks very good.

The Cards may get some unexpected pitching help this year from Southpaw Max Macon, a six-foot-three string bean from New Albany, Ind. Macon has good speed, but his chief asset is "stuff", a cute curve. Winning 21 games for Columbus last year, he may give the Cards the southpaw strength needed for several years.

The Cardinals contain elements that may result in surprising success or great disappointment. If the team gets "hot", it will be hard to stop short of a pennant.

ALLEN AND BOB FELLER TO HURL FOR CLEVELAND

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 24 —(UP)—The Cleveland Indians were to open a two-game grapefruit league series with the Philadelphia Athletics today.

Cleveland's pitching today was to be divided between Johnny Allen, Bob Feller and Joe Heving.

A seven-run assault in the eighth inning gave the Jersey City club a 9 to 8 decision over the Indians at Lafayette yesterday. Pitcher Johnny Humphries was the victim of most of Jersey City's hammering.

Earl Averill did his best to give Cleveland the lead when he hit a home run with the bases full in the ninth. Hal Trosky and Roy Weatherly also homered for the Indians earlier in the game.

Earl Whitehill pitched the first four innings for Cleveland and faced only 12 batters. One man made a scratch single off him but the player later was cut down at second.

HURLER IS STAR AS BUCKS WIN OVER RICHMOND

RICHMOND, Va., March 24 —(UP)—Ohio State university's baseball team defeated Richmond 9 to 2 yesterday. Besides pitching a three-hit game, Harry Mauer of Ohio State struck out 12 and drove in four runs himself.

DAVEY TO BANQUET OHIO CHAMPIONS AT MANSION

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP)—Governor Davey will be host to Newark high school's state championship basketball team at a luncheon in the executive mansion Saturday. Parents of the players, school officials and Newark business leaders also have been invited to the luncheon.

ORIENT SCHOOL NEWS

We have been guided by this lovely weather to our ball diamond. Most of all the sports we like recreation ball best. We suppose it is because we have a goal to work for. During the spring we compete with our neighboring village schools in hard fought battles. Harrisburg are our nearest rivals but we realize that sportsmanship goes with competition to make things interesting.

This week we welcomed three new pupils into our midst. They are in the fifth, seventh, and eighth grades, naming: Mary Francis, Daniel Francis, and Donald Francis respectively. These pupils withdrew from Grove City School to join us.

Clarence Baker gave as a short review of how he spent Saturday. Talking it for granted that you also are interested we'll tell you. First he was accompanied by a boy friend who persuaded him that they should make a raft. They journeyed along the high banks into the woods and cut down a small tree. After lots of honest work we had it ready to put in the water and thought we were ready to get on when—wow—it wouldn't float. Then what were we to do. A little concentration told us we should go over to where the National Guards shoot and get some lead. We went to the bridge where we could cross on the other side. When approaching the road we saw three snakes. We finished our journey for the lead and they lead our way home as it was getting very late and we were extremely hungry.

Geraldine Whiteside has her Summer vacation planned already.

That's fine, Geraldine, because we have only eight more weeks following this one until we'll be having real summer weather. Geraldine says, "I'm going to spend a week in Harrisburg, then I'm coming back and then spend a week in Harrisburg. The rest of my Summer will be spent away from home but I haven't definitely decided where yet."

Paul and The Printing Press Paul went to school at Birmingham High. He wanted to get a printing press to print the monthly school paper. One afternoon he soundered home and asked his father how much a printing press would cost. His father said, "About two-hundred dollars." Paul continued and told his father the use he had for it.

Paul was still thinking and he went outside and met Carter coming down the road on his bicycle. Carter could tell that Paul was disturbed about something and he said, "Why, Paul what seems to be the matter?" Paul continued to tell his story when they suddenly came upon the idea to go to get some subscriptions. That same afternoon they had one. That evening they went out and the next morning they arose early and still the following morning they were at work. At the end of this time they had sold approximately five hundred subscriptions to their new paper.

Paul and Carter went to the printing office to see if they could hire them to print the first issue to see if it would be successful then that they must invest in a printing press later on.

We the five hundred copies printed they were able to supply those who had subscribed but there were more than a double amount printed later to take care of those readers who had profited and enjoyed the paper. Several others in the school offered to help Paul and Carter and within a short period of time they had a full staff with Paul, Editor-in-Chief, and Carter, Assistant Editor-in-Chief. Paul and Carter were highly awarded by compliments from the school officials and students.

FOSSILS YIELD
NEW FACTS ON OIL PROSPECTS

GRAND FORKS, N. D. (UP)—Dr. Virginia Kline, expert stratigrapher, has been added to the staff of the state geological survey at the University of North Dakota to analyze microscopic fossils taken from well drillings.

It is the first time the science of micro-stratigraphy has been employed in the study of water conditions and oil prospects in the Cretaceous shales of the state, officials declare.

Minute fossils which millions of years ago swam in the salt water sea covering North Dakota will be catalogued.

Dr. Kline, working under direction of Howard E. Simpson, state geologist, is analyzing the fossils to determine the age and distribution of geologic formations in North Dakota. Many of the fossils she explained, are similar to small animals now found along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Large oil companies use stratigraphy to locate oil-bearing lands. Dr. Kline is believed to be the youngest woman in the country to hold a doctorate in geology. She is 26.

Thomas Jefferson's father is said to have purchased a large farm from the Indians for a bowl of lemonade.

ATTORNEY SAYS
18-JUDGE COURT
IS NOT LEGAL

Severe Setback Suffered
In Ruling Against Assessments

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP)—At least five suits attacking various aspects of the administration of the huge Muskingum conservancy district appeared today to be heading eventually to the state supreme court for final determination.

The most recent attack on the district authority was made by Coshocton County Prosecutor Carl M. Patterson, who charged creation of the 18-judge conservancy court is unconstitutional because the Common Pleas judges serving on it were not elected by electors of the district for which the court was established.

Earlier he protested the six-year limit set for the life of the court, contending that it cannot legally function for more than five years.

Both suits are believed based on a refusal to accept an offer of settlement of flood control benefit assessments which Patterson's petitions claim are too high.

One Dismissed
These cases and others are expected finally to go to the high court of the state. It already has disposed of one in favor of the district by dismissing a suit in which an attack was made on the formula or rule followed in determining benefits and corresponding payments.

The district suffered its most severe setback to date when the court of appeals at Mt. Vernon sustained a trial court injunction against issuance of $3,000,000 in general assessment bonds. Charles Hostetter, a Stark county taxpayer, contended the assessments would be levies against property owners irrespective of benefits.

In addition there are two suits pending in the Coshocton county Common Pleas court in which the city and county school boards seek to enjoin collection of assessments on the grounds they are excessive.

PRINTER VIEWS
GAME FOLLOWED
LONG IN 'COPY'

EUGENE, Ore. (UP)—August Bremmer, veteran linotype operator who has enjoyed his basketball vicariously from the chair of his machine for 27 years, saw his first game this season.

Bremmer has "set" more basketball stories and summaries during his career than the average operator, since Eugene is the home of the University of Oregon and is a basketball hotbed.

"I had no idea the game was as fast as the one I saw here," Bremmer declared after watching the championship Oregon team thump the University of Idaho, 68-41.

"Basketball is really a colorful spectacle."

From reading the "copy" of so many lineups and statistics, Bremmer had formed definite ideas about the game. He was surprised to find the foul lines so close to the basket. He thought the distance was much greater because so many free throws are missed. He also thought the ball was larger, and he was surprised at the deft ball-handling of the players.

"Sure I'm going to more basketball games," he said. "If I had known the game was that way, I would have gone a long time ago."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THE UNBALANCED PAIR

WHILE NOT arguing for the principle, it is only candid to report that better players of the cards try to become declarers when they have poor players as partners. This results in some queer bidding and therefore some queer contracts. You even see five-card suits rebid a couple of times. Such tactics occasionally bring about interesting play, when the declarer has to do the best he can with a moth-eaten trump suit.

When the diamond Q was led, South won with the K, and immediately realized he was playing with a very bad looking trump suit. However, he decided to take the bull by the horns and lead trumps out, with the hope that the distribution of the opponents would be three-three. West won the first heart trick and returned the diamond J to the A. Declarer led a second trump and ruffed the diamond that was offered. A third heart lead cleared trumps. East returned a club, which declarer let ride to the J, finessed the spade J and won the remaining tricks.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

South started the bidding on this deal, third hand, with a 1-Heart bid, which West passed and North responded with 1-No Trump. South now called 2-Hearts and when North again bid no trump, South rebid his hearts for the third time, whereupon North took the contract on 4-Hearts.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

How should South play for 3-No Trumps after the lead of the heart Q?
